R.O.T.C.

After vacation Lowell ROTC came back to life . Platoon and Company practice began, Drill team members once more threw rifles into the air and caught them with proficiency. Battalion formations were held almost every other week, for Spring 1972 was a semester of competitions and parades.

In March, the Battalion along with the Girls' Drill Team joined the St. Patrick's parade, and in April they came through the 91st Competition with flying colors

California Scholarship Federation

Lowell was the site of the first CSF district conference in many years as students from around the city attended the chapter's December mini-conference. The theme of the conference was the past and its relation to the present. The reaction from members, who came in the morning and stayed through lunch, was good, even enthusiastic.

An even more important activity was the tutoring program, This term CSF handled more students than ever before, all on a one- to-one basis. While at isolated times there were problems finding enough tutors to go around, ex especially the last two weeks of the term--the panic period, for the overall semester the program was a success.

The CSF gave better service in the spring term and went on the traditional field trips: to Stanford and to the regional conference in San Jose, and finally to the picnic.

G.A.A.

The Girls' Athletic Association of Lowell was very active in the Fall of 1971. Their projects included s selling Lowell Axe Club raffle tickets in November, selling candy canes and cookbooks in December. They donated the food and a 12-pound turkey to St. Anthony's Dining Hall for Christmas. Also they had a drive for Blue Chip Stamps, with which they purchased a projector table, given to the PE department at the awards assembly.

Soccer Club

It is the declared purpose of the Lowell High Soccer Club to promote the game of soccer by disseminating information about the game within the school and the community. The members of the club aid the community they live in by volunteering their services to the community in the fields of soccer coaching and refereeing.

Soccer teaches young people the principles of good sportsmanship which are of the utmost importance in today's society. Soccer develops physical fitness and is fun to play. At Lowell, the Soccer Club promotes the game of soccer by: 1) showing soccer films; and 2) sponsoring intramural soccer games during the spring semester.

The sponsor of the Soccer Club is Mr. E. M. Feibusch. In addition to being coach of the Lowell High School Soccer Team, Mr. Feibusch is the Director of Coaching for the California Soccer Football Association. He is also a member of the National Federation of High School Rules Committee. He is a founding member of the San Francisco Junior Soccer League.

S.F.F.W.T.C.

Three and a half years old, the Science Fiction and Weird Things Club voted itself out of active existence last term , ending an era. The demise came after a struggle for leadership between two forceful members and put to a stop the flow of entertaining weekly bulletin notices.

There is a chance of rebirth next year under a new sponsor and with a new purpose: the enjoyment of reading and discussing science fiction.

Baroque Group

The Baroque Group performed at the Festival of Joy, creating atmosphere for the diners, and went on to play at College Night, The Renaissance Fair, and over the PA system with resounding baroque music for registry ears.

Mrs. Alice Fredricks successfully sponsored the group, and muchof the spirit and organization came from Katie Campbell, who tutored beginning musicians and was an outstanding soloist.

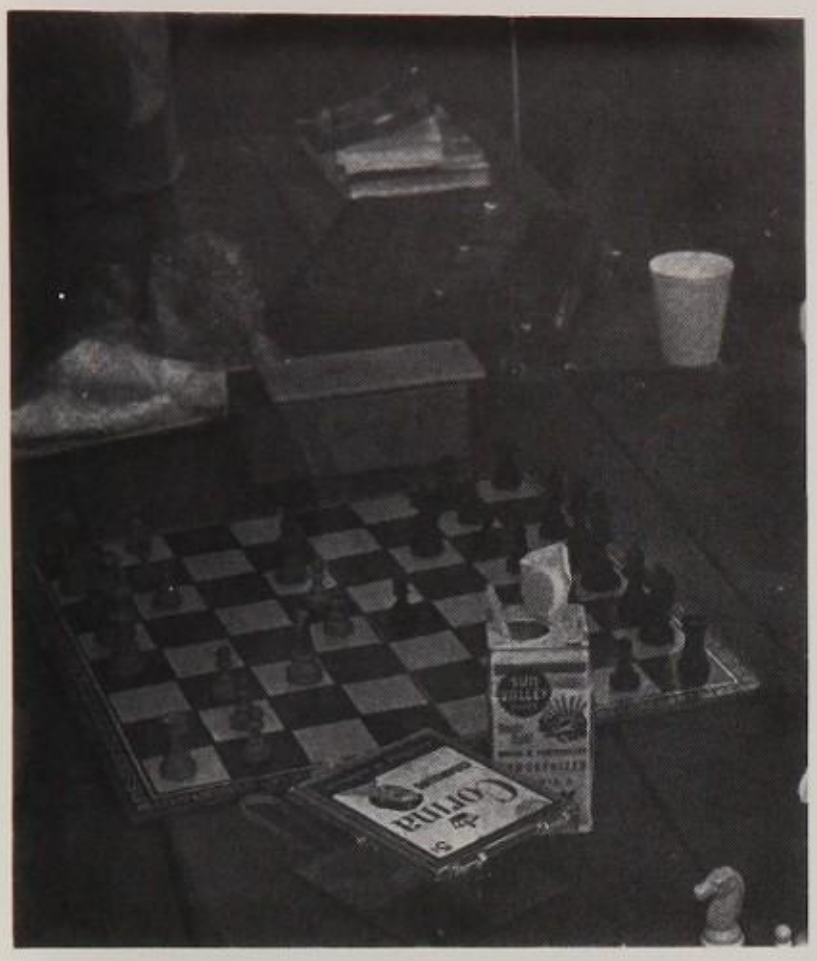
Chess Club



The Lowell Chess Club was plagued by one problem this semester. Yet, the club has had an active and successful year.

The problem was, and is, a lack of chess sets. About four years ago, the situation was similar. The PTA, at that time, supplied enough money to buy eight new chess sets. Since then, however, several chess enthusiasts have indefinitely borrowed or misplaced all of the sets.

Despite the scarcity, the Chess Club still exists. Members bring their own sets to play among themselves or to play against other schools.

This semester, the chess team has defeated Mission, Wilson, Galileo, and St. Ignatius.

The chess team, composed of Martin Chee, Kevin Fong, Peter Lew, Craig Montell, and Darryl Woo, have only one loss over the patt three years. The loss occurred on May 25, 1972, and the victor was Mr. Peter Dahl, Lowell Science Department Head. Playing seven people simultaneously, the nationally ranked master won five games, drew two, and lost one. Although Mr. Dahl has marred a perfect record, the Chess Club looks forward to a rematch and another successful semester.

Filipino Club

The aim of the Filipino-American Club is that Filipino culture be known to the school and the community.

In the fall semester the club raised funds with car washes and cake sales; they served the community by singing Christmas carols at Letterman Hospital.

The popular bamboo dance was performed at the Festival of Joy.

In the spring they had a candy sucker sale and an ice skating party. An Easter Egg Hunt was the service project, followed by a dance with Wilson and a picnic at Angel Island.

The Carnival booth sold Lumpra, and the club has a scholarship fund for deserving seniors.

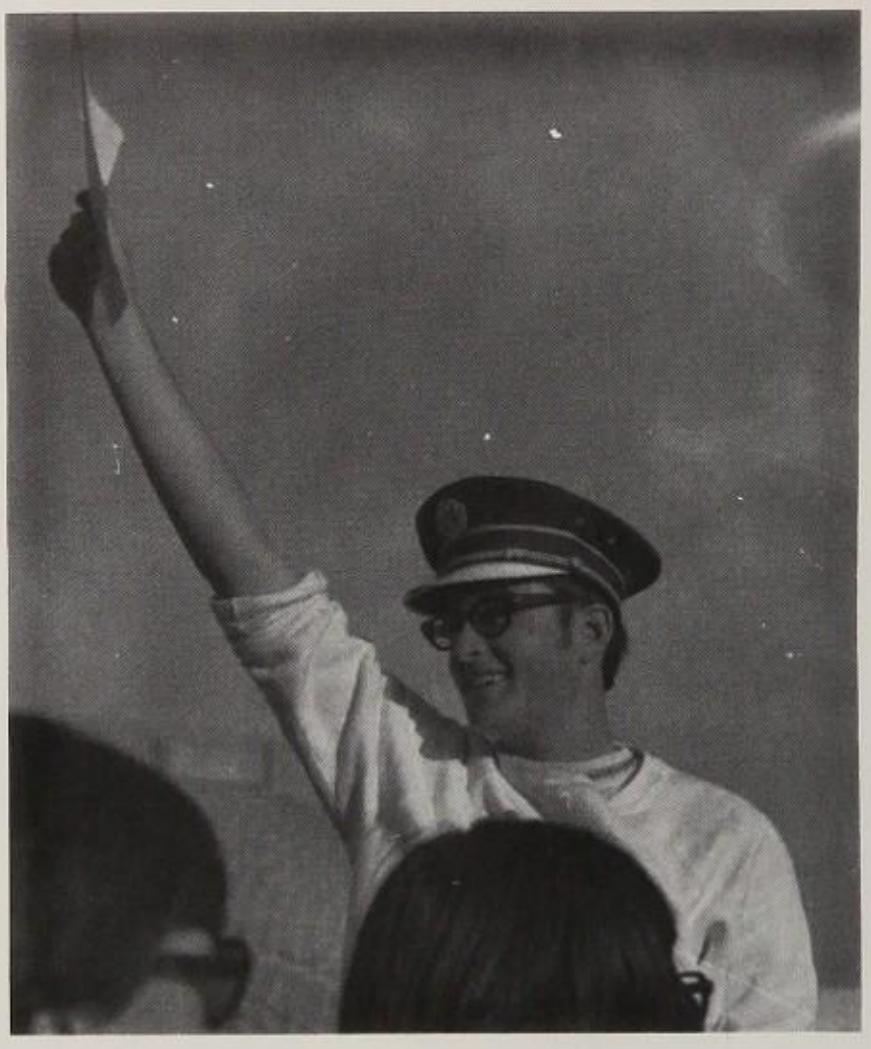
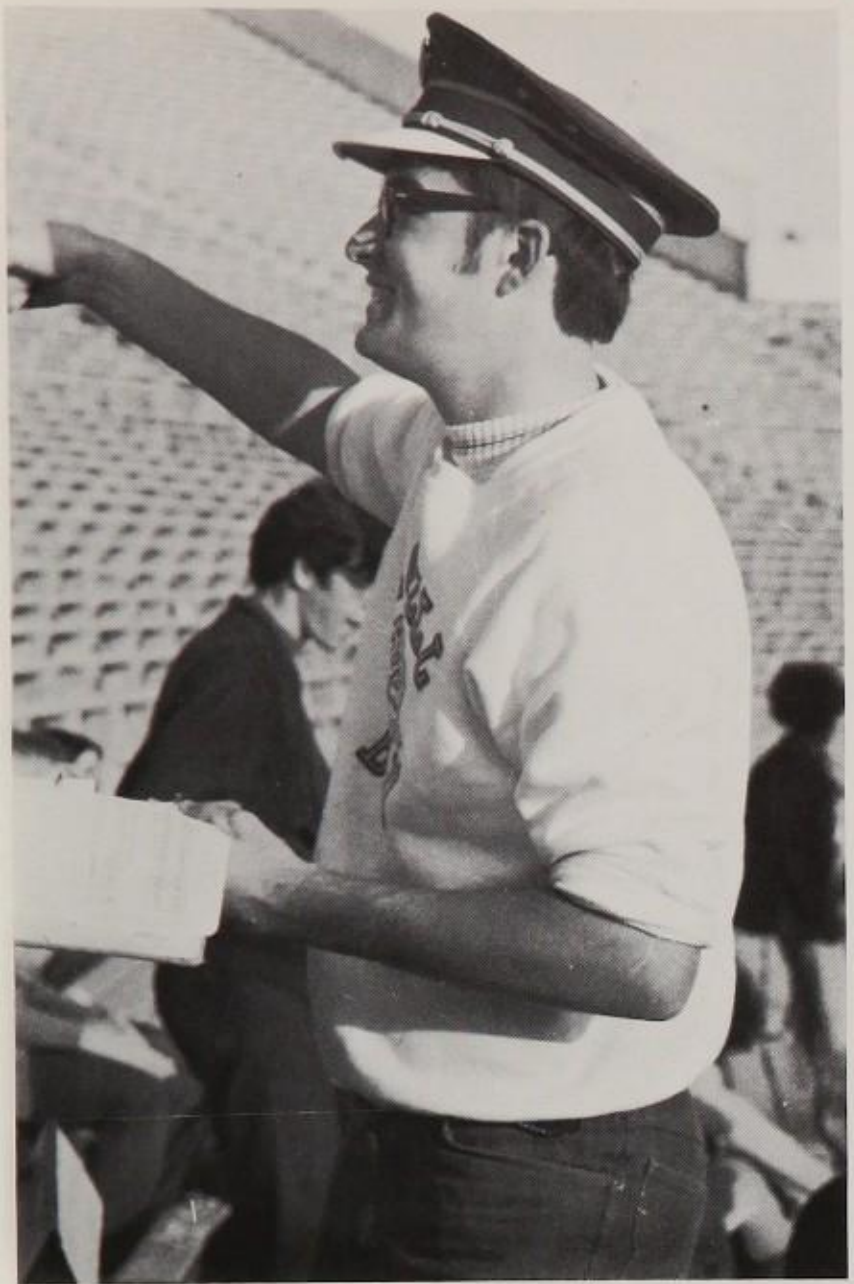
Band

The Lowell Band had an active year, cooperating with the Orchestra in ticket sales, putting on concerts, and producing a pep band--large and loud--which traveled to games and contributed to the championships of the year. Mrs. Nancy Walcott was the spirited director.





Choir

The Choir's Spring Concert began with Christus Factus Est by Felicia Anerio. Under the direction of O. Dale Blackburn, the choir then sang an hour of song ranging from ballads to church music.

The Ensemble, after a stage presentation, went into the audience, placed themselves about the room and sang in stereo effect.

Along with the annual Christmas performance, the choral groups joined the Festival of Joy cast to delight the audience with a variety of numbers.

LCC: Surprisingly, the Lowell Co-Curricular Council was very active during the past year. Good attendance at meetings and some controversial issues created active participation. Such issues as budget cuts, the mini-course curriculum, charter revision, early elections, and the Lowell Indian as a symbol were considered by the LCC. Since the council deals with policy decisions, not functions, the amount of work accomplished was considerable.

SAB: The Student Activities Board dealt primarily with spirit raising activities, students body validation sales, and dances. Student body validation stickers were sold inefficiently at the beginning of the year and created an alarming deficit for the entire school. Dances continued in the same old mold under such titles as "The Blarney Stone Stomp," and "Spring Fling." Spirit at games and rallies was good throughout the fall semester, climaxed by the Homecoming Rally in November. Generally speaking, most SAB officers dedicated themselves to their offices (or at least the SA office) and worked during the year. One officer said of the SAB, "Always a day late and a dollar short."

BSCS: The Board for School and Community Service is probably the least known student organization. Comprised of clubs, service organizations, and its own elected officers, the BSCS coordinates projects such as bake sales, book drives, tutoring, volunteer work, and serves as a cle aring house for information. Unfortunately friction developed between the BSCS and some clubs over project approval, and the BSCS proved ineffective in its policing efforts. A number of officers failed to support the BSCS and therefore little could be accomplished.

Football Falls to Fifth

There are a lot of excuses that can be made for a losing football team, so we won't dwell on them. Let it suffice to say that the Lowell 1971 Varsity Football Team had all the ingredients of a winning team, but for one reason or another failed to become one.

Lowell started off their season on a bad note when they lost to Westmoor, 16-14, in a game that is rapidly becoming a big rivalry. A 39-yard field goal was the difference in that game. They came back strong the next week, however, defeating Kennedy High, 13-0. A well-played defeat to a tough Hogan team and a badly played tie to Capuchino ended Lowell's pre-season with a record of 1-2-1.

The opening league game made Lowell look like the powerhouse teams of the past. They smeared Washington, 37-8, and Lowell began to look like they were on their way.

Junior fullback Fred Bernard scored three touchdowns behind some fierce offensive blocking. The joy of the victory was quickly diminished, though, when star tackle and defensive captain, Bob Spear, was killed in an auto accident the night following the game.

It remained to be seen how the great loss caused by Spear's death would affect the team, but they showed their ability to come back when they came from 12 points behind to beat Wilson, 21-12, behind the strong running of Dennis Barfield, who picked up 149 yards in 20 attempts.

The last three games of the season, against Lincoln, Mission, and Balboa, all were nightmarish, as Lowell failed to get much together and lost all three. In the Lincoln game, the Indians started off as though they were going to thrash Lincoln, driving within the five yard line four times in the first half but scoring only once.

On the bright side Lowell has several starters returning next year, including eight defensive starters. Sorely missed, however will be graduating seniors Al Sockolov, Ron Evans, Ollie Cruz, All-City guard Steve Loftus, Bob Akers, Bill Dittoe, Ray McCaulay, and Chuck Heaney.

Weakened J.V.s Win Three

The Junior Varsity Football team finished the season with a 3-4 record. Under the coaching of Mr. Andy Korba the JV's started the season off poorly, losing to Lincoln, 24-6 and to Washington, 31-0. They then beat Mission, 24-14. This victory, added to forfeits by Poly and Galileo, resulted in the JV's three wins of the season.

The Junior Varsity Football team got some good performances from their running backs, Mike Aczon and Lary Freeman, who alternated at halfback; James Kon and Tom Amoto, who played fullback. The JV's were led at the quarterback position by Bob Romero who threw his passes to Mike Dunn and Peter Harris, the leading receivers on the team. The line was anchored by returning JV's, William Wong and Rodney Chinn. Al Spencer was a defensive standout at middle guard.

Finishing in the middle of the standings, the JV's had a good time, which is, after all, the object of a Junior Varsity Football team. Even when this team lost, their morale didn't die.

Sophs Show 5-1-1 Record

Lowell's Sophomore Football Team was very successful, finishing in second place with a 5-1-1 record. The Sophs coached by Mr. Bagatelos, a teacher from Marina Junior High, started the season off with a tremendous win against Lincoln. After that they lost their only game of the season to Washington 20-12. The Sophs then won three straight before tying Balboa.

The Sophs were led be running backs Kevin Austin and Dennis Shanager (until he was moved up to Varsity). Lenny Moriyama also did a good job at running back.

The quarterback of the Sophs was Kevin Grumbach whose leading receiver was Kenny Baker. The Sophs' line was headed by Mitch Fine and Bruce Barker.

While the Sophs didn't win the championship, they came extremely close and should provide many of the outstanding football players of Lowell in the next two years.

First Team to the Top

The 1971 soccer team underlined the emergence of Lowell as a soccer power in finishing the season with a 18-3-3 all-season and a 7-2-1 AAA record. In addition, for the first time in the history of AAA soccer, Lowell went all the way to the championship game.

Lowell opened the season with a surprise upset over Mission, defeating the Bears, 1-0. The Indians, behind the powerful scoring team of Al Ovadia, David Lea, Jim Theodorides, Leon Smith, and Alberto Elizalde, continued their drive, beating Washington, 5-0, Galileo, 1-0, and Wilson, 5-0. (Lowell fell short, however, as a strong Balboa team handed them a 3-0 defeat.) Lowell's streak eventually came to an end, meeting defeat at the hands of Bal, 0-3.

The team still appeared to be in a slump as they could only manage a tie with Lincoln, 1-1. Although hampered by a nine-man Poly defense, the Indians won 4-0, insuring a place in the semi-finals. With a 3-2 vicotry over Gompers, Lowell took possession of second place during the regular season.

The semi-final contest against Bal turned out to be a battle between an explosive Bal offense and a steady Lowell defense comprised of fullbacks Jim Hayman, Pat Wong, David Ho Sang and Brian Connolly. Goalie Chris Lehman stopped many near goals as well as taking charge of Lowell's defensive effort.

Both teams went into the final quarter scoreless, but it wasn't long until the hard work and play - making abilities of Lowell's two halfbacks, Marty Glickfeld and Toby Rappolt, finally paid off as a play originating with Glickfeld enabled forward Jim Theodorides to score, winning the game for Lowell. But Lowell was not destined to go all the way, losing to Mission in the championship game, 0-3.

Forward Jim Theodorides represented Lowell on the All-City team. Toby Rappolt, Jim Hayman, and soph Al Elisalde were named to the second team and Marty Glickfeld received honorable mention.

Just before the season began, Coach Don Richardson had said the thing he worried most about was making the playoffs. Worrying about a championship came later. For a while, it seemed the Lowell varsity baseball team wouldn't win reach the playoffs. At midseason the team's record was a dismal 2-5. Everyone seemed to have forgotten about the Indians (except about five loyal fans and six song girls). The other teams in the league, writers of the local papers, and students cast Lowell away as a team that should have been. But then something happened. Just what no one will ever know. Quite simply they started winning and putting the pieces of a puzzle back together. By the end of the round robin the Indians were 8-6, tied with Lincoln for third place, and most of all IN the playoffs.

The four teams in the playoffs were Balboa, Washington, Lincoln and Lowell. In the first round Lincoln upset round robin champ Balboa 3-1. In the other ball game Lowell clobbered Washington 11-3. The next day the Indians played Lincoln and the winner had the right to battle Balboa for the championship. Lowell pulled it out with a 7-1 victory, setting the stage for the championship game.

On a beautiful sunning spring day at Big Rec, Bill Dittoe battled Mike Norris for eight thrilling innings. Both pitchers threw exceptionally well, and both deserved to win the game. But Balboa's defense knifed Norris in the back. The committed two costly errors in that eighth inning when they had a 1-0 lead. The two mistakes led to two runs for Lowell and the city championship. A 2-1 victory over the team that captured the round robing with a seemingly invincible 13-1 records. Incredible! Seasons like this only occur in crazy storybooks. It couldn't have been for real!

After the season three Lowell players were named to All City teams. Senior first baseman Bill Dittoe Junior shortstop Dennis Barfield for the second year in a row, and soph catcher Lindsay Yoshimura were named to the Chronicle's first team. Second baseman Calvin Lou, outfielder Dave Bon, and utility man Marty Glickfeld were selected to the second team. The Examiner chose Dittoe and Barfield to their first team. Catcher Yoshimura, second baseman Lou, and outfielder Bruce Powell were named to the second team. Jack Dittoe, senior outfielder, received honorable mention.

J.V.'s Defeat Lincoln for Title

Lowell's Junior Varsity baseball team captured the AAA championship by posting a 3-1 win over Lincoln in a nine inning affair. Kevin McMahon finished the season with a fantastic 8-0 record as her pitched the entire game. Third baseman Gary Erikson clobbered two triples to lead the way for the Indians. Joe Slamovich played great centerfield as he made some outstanding defensive plays which saved the game for McMahon.

Overall the JV's record was 8-1, and they won the round robin title also. The team was well-balanced with a great defensive, almost errorless team.

Fernando DeAlba played leftfield and always made contact when he batted. Junior Pete Harris was the starting rightfielder and played well throughout the season. Another junior, Walt Laughridge, played first base and was clean-up man in the batting order.

The team would not have been the same without McMahon's batting mate Kevin Grumbach. Larry Freeman was a clutch hitter and a fine shortstop as he was always on the basepaths.

Coach Bob Braunreiter turned in a fine performance with his team in the spring 1972 season.

Lowell's First

Fencers Foiled

The Lowell Fencing Team, coached by Mr. Mack Yoshida, finished its first season with a 2-5 record, predictable since both the team and coach were new to the sport. Many of the fencers came from the class offered by the Boys' PE Department and had no previous experience. But the coach has high hopes for a good team next year with half the team returning.

In fencing nine bouts are fought with each man able to fence a maximum of three bouts. To get points a fencer must make a clean touch on the front of the upper torso, not a glancing blow. Judging is done with one fencer from each school and an impartial judge.

The following boys comprised the Spring 1972 Fencing Team: Richard Kittinger (6-9), Ray McDonnell (5-12), Kingston Quan (5-13), Thomas Wong (1-1), Ray Lee (1-3), David Sviersky (0-1), Karl Lew (0-1), Philip Heller (0-2), Michael Caltrap (0-3), Emil Guillermo, Stephen Tsang, and Wing Lee.

Rifle Team

Least known but most successful is Lowell's Rifle Team, undefeated in round robin competition and All-City for four years, State Champions for two straight years, Reno winners for the past two years, and record owners for all above.mathces.

Lowell's greatest triumph was the Sixth Army District (14 states) match three years ago, breaking an eight-year domination by Hawaiian schools and being ranked the sixth best high school team in the nation as of May 1972.

Riflery in AAA consists of three positions--prone, kneeling, and off-hand or standing shot at 50 feet with ten targets shot in each position and 300 possible points. Many shooters have a 250-260 average.

The 1972 Rifle Team: Mike Asahina, Ray Chiang, Brian Cruz, Brair Hjello, Rich Kostriken, Ed. Kline, Luke Langlois, Mike Lanza, Bab MadAulay, Stan Mason, Paston Perluss, Mark Rosen, Dave Seveng, and Sgt. Mack Yoshida.

Although not allowed to shoot in AAA matches, Linda Baily also uses the rifle range. and captured the California State Girls' Rifle Championship.

Playoffs Missed by 1 Point

Missing a playoff berth on the final day of the season, Lowell was turned back by a strong Wilson team 61-60. Otherwise the season marked a great improvement over the previous year's JV record of 2-17.

They finished this year at 8-10 overall and 3-4 in league play. The team was led by guards David Bernstein andKevin Austin (11-point per game average), forwards Bruce Powell and Rich Blaisdell (15-point per game average), and at the center position, Kevin Holman

Also coming off the bench to spark the team, were sophomores Steve Green, Yun Choun, Ken Baker, and Kenny Galaei.

Almost . . .

Lowell's 125's Basketball Team had a successful season with a 7-3 record, finishing in second place. After losing only one game, with one game left, the "Little Indians" failed to dethrone the dynasty of lightweight basketball, the Washington Eagles.

With a 5-2 regular season, Lowell beat Wilson for the semi-finals, but had to play Balboa for another semi-final game. Lowell beat Bal and advanced to play Washington, against whom they kept the score close, but lost due to low shooting percentage in the last quarter.

The '25's were lead by All-City pick, Reggie Regino; team MVP, Calvin Yee; Most Improved, Fred Nishioka; Fighting Forward, Dave Tang; and Baby Buffalo, Kendall Louie.

Reliable substitutes were George Obana, Gordon Jeong, and Clinton Choy. Leading the rooting section, and generating spirit on the bench, were Randy Gee and Gordon Kitagawa.

The Ben Neff Award is given to the senior who contributed the most to the basketball program at Lowell during his three years of playing. The award was presented to Dave Tang.

Lowell's 115's "featherweight" basketball team finished with a 4-4 record to end the season in fourth place.

The 115's were led by an All-City performance by Roger Lewis, the league's leading scorer with 142 in seven games. Roger was the "most improved" player on the 1970 115's. Other starters were senior Ed Fong, and juniors Calvin (C. D.) Lou, Ray Ju, and Jim Baer. Help from the bench came from Craig Collins. Bob Ellis, Wing Hsieh, Mike Leon, and Steve Gee.

Lowell's 115's won four of their first five games; that one loss was only by four points. Washington and Galileo were the next opponents and it resulted in two losses for Lowell.

With a 4-3 record, the 115's won fourth place in the round robin and gained a playoff berth. The playoff game saw the score close for the entire first half. But unfortunately as the game progressed, Lowell failed to break the Eagles' full-court press.

The game ended with the score of 74-53, with Washington the victor and Lowell eliminated from the city championship.

Championship Hopes Deflated

Stan Stewart's Varisty Basketball squad, amidst a forrest of giants, completed the 1971-72 year with a third-place finish in league play, losing to Balboa in the AAA playoffs, and a 10-12 overall record.

Atop the league, save for a last-second loss to Washington's Eagles, the Indians were crippled by the mid-term graduation of playmaker Royston Dea and Chris Holman, an important cog in Stewart's masterplan. They dropped three of the last four games.

Though true team basketball is stressed, the individual performance of forward Nick Hoppe--a 34-point effort against Mission, leading team rebounding, and being named league's Most Valuable Player--stand out.

Juniors John Paloglou and Dave Lynch were selected, as was Dea, to the local media Honorable Mention All-City selections.

Stewart Fong, matured by two years of explosive lighweight experience, stepped into the breach left by the mid-term departure of Dea and Holman, and performed beyond all expectations.

Coach Stewart faced his players for one final moment and spoke to say that this was his most satisfying season, insuring for this team a position of respect.

Strongest Team in Five Years

In keeping with Lowell's tradition of fine Cross Country teams, the Indians once again came out on top, all three teams going through the regular season undefeated. The All-City was no real surprise either as Lowell ran away with the Varisty, JV, and Overall titles and also placed second in the Sophomore division.

Breaking his own record for the 2.3 mile course, Brad Duffey ran a 11:02.8 race with teammate Atkins Chun not far behind. Finishing in the top ten were Jon Keyak, Gus Aguilar, Mark Hipp, and Jose Arguello.

Pius Kao, followed by Ted Paxinos and Jonathan Irvine, swept the first three places in their successful bid for the JV Championship. Louis Zavalza and Hector Chavez placed second and third respectively to lead the Soph squad to a second place berth but were still good enough to help win the Overall championship for Lowell.

Trackmen Place Third

The 1972 Lowell Varsity Track Team, after an excellent round robin season, placed third in All-City competition. Although there were only two Varsity winners in their events, the overall depth of the team was exceptional.

The only winners were Atkins Chun in the mile and record breaker Brad Duffey in the two mile. Chun's time was a quick 4:31.6, while Duffey set a blistering pace to break the existing two-mile record by over six seconds with a time of 9:27.9. Duffey, Lowell's premier distance runner, has also run a 4:19 indoor mile and a 9:15 pre-season two-mile.

Following the pattern set in earlier yaars, the Indians' strongpoints were the distance races and the hurdles. The highpoint of the All-City meet for Lowell was the mile run which was won by Chun with Gus Aguilar second and Mark Hipp third.

As for the hurdles, for the second straight year high-stepping Walter Brown led the Indian attack with a second in the 190 lows. Other point-makers for Lowell were Chuck Heany's third in the discus, Van Carter's third in the 100-yard dash, and Stewart Fong's fifth in the long jump.

The 1972 Lowell Varsity Swim Team

Opposite top: The team waits turn at Larson pool.

It was a disappointing end to an otherwise great season as Lowell's swim team was narrowly upset by Washington High in the All-City meet last Saturday at S. F. State Pool.

The meet was almost entirely controlled by both Washington, Lowell, the two super swim powers of the AAA. Washington defeated Lowell 207 to 205 points while Galileo, the third place team, scored a distant 75 points. Lowell captured the 130 and 120 championships but came in second to Washington in the Varisty. Washington cleverly manipulated some 130 swimmers into Varsity so they would be able to capture the Varsity Swim Championship at the expense of the less prestigious 130's title.

Coach Bill Feiling praised his 120's, saying they were the best he's had in thirty years of coaching.

Individual standouts for Lowell were John Moyes who placed first in the Varsity breaststroke and helped the Medley relay team to a first place and a new school record, Mike Desmond who captured first in the 100-yard backstroke, Cy Lo who had two first places and one second place as he led the 130's to the championship, Larry Low and Toby Rappolt, who placed first and second in the 130's breaststroke and Nick Wong who led the 120's to the championship with first place finishes in the 50-and 100-yard freestyles.

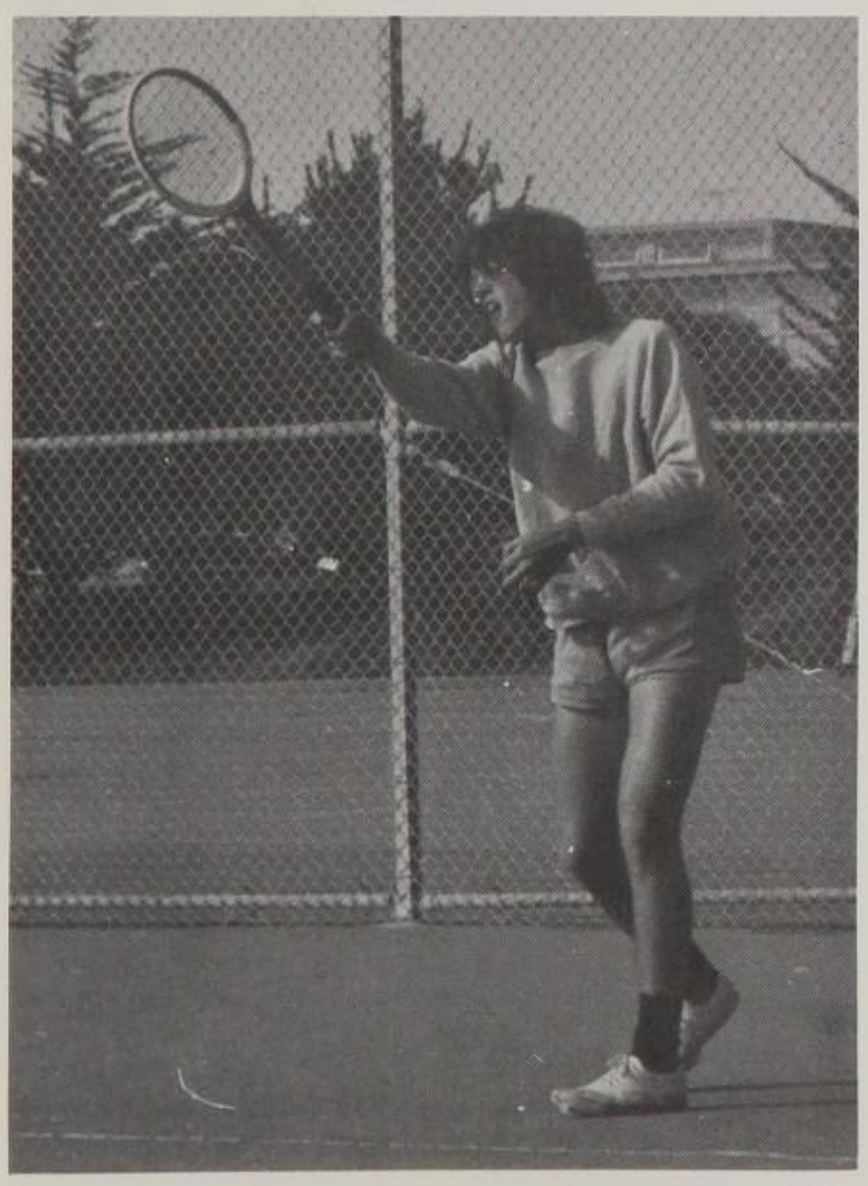
Tennis All-City



Mark Jee, perhaps the greatest tennis player at Lowell in the last decade, led the Lowell tennis team to its greatest victory ever. Rebounding from a loss to Washington last year, 4-3, the Varisty this year smeared the Eagles 6-1 before a crowd of over one hundred.

The Lowell team proved to be much superior, with some matches won by as great a margin as 6-0 and 6-1. Altogether the Varsity, consisting of Mark Jee, Ron Louie, Stanley Woo, David Zeligs, Dan Mihalovich, David Ho Sang, Darryl Woo, Ken Lewin, and Nick Roxborough (in order) put our a tremendous effort in having an all-round good season and taking the All-City award for the best team.

Mark Jee again showed his superiority over other players by walking away with the All-City Singles Crown for the second straight time without the loss of a single set. But he wasn't the only one from Lowell to win an All-City Crown. The red-hot doubles combination of David Ho Sang and David Zeligs teamed to take the All-City doubles honors.

Next year the team will be considerably weakened through the loss of super-senior Ron Louie. Ron every match for the team at the No. 2 position and filled in for Mark at No. 1, winning those matches, too. Indeed, he was the guy most people didn't know about because all eyes were on Mark as the star. Other seniors to be missing from the varsity next year are Dave Zeligs, and Darryl Woo, but perhaps the pain of their loss will not be felt so badly with promising underclassmen such as Jose Ragasa, John Paloglou, and Ken Lewin.

Golfers Swing to First Place

Lowell's Varsity Golf team, long denied the final award, finally defeated the defending champion Lincoln Mustangs to win the 1972 AAA Round Robin championship. The win snapped the multi-year domination of the Mustangs and gave Coach Graham Knox a personal thrill.

Our winning six-man squad in that match included Tom Posey and Bruce Cardinal, numbers two and three in individual All-City competition. Others were Mark Klung, George Jennings, Steve Powell and Jim Mc Gilley. Completing the team were Mike Bagatellos. Alan Gutterman, Edgar Stephenson, and team captain Mike Lazarus.

Prospects are bright for future years as five of our Varsity players are returning. In addition our Junior Varisty again produced an individual champion in Andrew Alenich, a promising sophomore. Lowell again should remain a power in high school golf here in the city.

The Girls Volleyball team for the second year in a row took the all city championship. Under the guidance of Mrs. Kay DuVal the girls had easy victories the first several games:. They ran into a little trouble with Galileo, losing that game, but during the semifinals they showed Gal that Lowell's Girls Volleyball team were the best in the city.

The team uses the new method of power volleyball with the Olympic style hand grips. The girls were also learning the complicated Japanese roll and tried to utilize it this year.

Creative Arts

One of the Creative Arts Department's most enterprising projects this year was the expansion of Mr. Tryphon Nichols' ceramics program. Through students' fund-raising efforts, T-2 was converted into the Ceramics Workshop, complete with five new pottery wheels and a kiln. As part of the course, students learned glaze calculation, the science of mixing glazes out of chemicals. Through the Art in the Community project, students used the facilities in San Francisco State College's Art Department.

Advanced art students' mural paintings adorned the walls of the English Resource Center and the faculty cafeteria.

The drama department's fall term play was "The Mouse That Roared;" in the spring it presented "Variations on a Theme," with scenes from "Romeo And Juliet," "The Fantastiks," "West Side Story," and "The Romancers." Mr. Joseph Tanzi directed both productions.

"The Key to Joy" was the theme of this year's Festival of Joy, presented December 10 and 11. As in the past, the evening featured a spaghetti dinner and baroque music in the cafeteria, ethnic dancing and an art sale in the gym, and a musical-dramatic extravaganza in the auditorium--including selections by the orchestra, band, choir, and talented solo performers, as well as plays and dances by drama and stage movement students.

Mrs. Nancy Neuman introduced Advanced Placement Art 1 and 2 this spring.

Mr. O. Dale Blackburn's choral groups also took part in all school productions, graduations, and in their own concerts.

The orchestra, directed by Mr. Jack Pereira, played an active season, giving its own concerts, producing an opera with a guest conductor, co-starring in "Variations, and fund-raising, as well as performing off campus.

Under Mrs. Nancy Walcott the band fourished with concerts and as a pep band during games and rallies.

Mrs. Lillian Usher's Stage Movement classes also performed as a group as well as part of larger productions.

The Forensics program, under Mr. Michael Smith, brought in trophies and honors, placed first in the Tournament of Champions at USF, and sent representatives to the National Speech Championships.

Journalism published 11 issues of THE LOWELL, two specials, and a program for the Festival. A 312-page yearbook, planned, photographed, and pasted--as well as typed--by the Media 55 classes, finished the year.

In a radical move the department consented to grant solid credit for a Creative Arts course to high seniors, thus allowing them an elective after all requirements are met without the traditional four-soled solid program.

Social Science

The pride of the Social Science department, Mr. Thomas Harrison's multi-media show, "Sand-lot City", played to student audiences, parents at Open House, and was entered in the Red Cross Youth Film Festival on May 12. The show, a history of western San Francisco, is the culmination of several terms' work by Mr. Harrison's Civics 2-Community Lab Media Production classes.

As a sustaining project, the department presented political candidates for several offices, among them: Sen. Malliard, Supervisor Boas, State Sen. Marks, Supervisor Pelosi, and local school board candidates.

The San Francisco Police Department sent officers in April to speak to Civics 1 classes. Students then had the opportunity to acquire first-hand knowledge by participating in Friday night squad car rides. Also that month, students served as jurors on mock trials at Hastings Law School, where actual cases were re-enacted.

Two new Civics 2 classes were introduced this year: Anthropology-American Indians, with Mr. Norman Durieux in the spring, and Psychology, pioneered by Mrs. Margaret Scanlan in the fall, also taught by Mrs. Nancy Hayes in the spring.

Students in Mrs. Ellenor Cross' new Civics 1-Community Service class worked as volunteers in agencies in conjunction with the San Francisco Volunteer Bureau.

Also new, and still in the experimental stages, were two offshoots of the United States History-Curriculum Development class: Asian-American Experience with Mr. Robert Jow, and Minority-Black History with Miss Sherrone Smith.

California History, previously a one-semester course, was split into Cal 1 and Cal 2 this year, thereby allowing more in-depth coverage of subject matter and greater concentration on San Francisco history. This spring Mr. Peter Zasso's Cal 2 classes researched the best examples of architecture in the city as both a photographic and historic quest.

English History, taught by Mr. Ernest Feibusch, made a comeback this spring after a three-year absence.

In the spring, Mrs. Hayes offered a U. S. History 1 class with a cultural approach, looking at early American arts and crafts, home life, and customs.

Several science and social science classes, among them Mr. Harrison's ecology classes, enjoyed a Bay Ecology field trip May 17 on the marine research vessel, Inland Seas, sailing from Redwood City.

The department also sponsored a BART slide presentation in the auditorium on May 8.

Joining the Social Science Department this year were Mrs. Nancy Hayes, Mrs. Margaret Scanlan, and Miss Sherrone Smith.

Science

Realizing the importance of lab work in its courses, the science department initiated team teaching in both chemistry and physiology this year. This method of instruction allows for more flexible, realistic scheduling of class time and also saves classroom space. Miss Faith Appleby and Mr. Urban Becker began teaching chemistry as a team this spring, utilizing lab sessions and lectures. Team teaching in physiology was somewhat more complex, involving three teachers' classes four times a day. These classes also followed the lecture-lab format. A standardized final determined students' grades in physiology, as it also did for Biology 2.

Mrs. Pam Abad and Miss Appleby organized a chemistry tutoring program in the spring. An all-day enterprize, advanced chemistry students volunteered their services in the Science-Math Resource Center.

Designed so that they may be taken in any order, four new Advanced Biology courses each assumed the title of Biology 3 in the fall and Biology 4 in the spring. Field and Laboratory Biology and Environmental Physiology have proven the most popular of the four, which also include Emryology and Histology, and Biochemistry and Genetics.

Math

By shuffling their courses around in the fall, the Math department's long-sought-after goal became a reality this year. All sophomores now are starting with C P Math 5 rather than with Geometry 1, as had been the custom for years. The sequence change stems from the belief that C P 5 is more of a continuation of Algebra 1 and 2 than it is of Geometry. Consequently, Math courses now follow this order of succession: C P 5, Geometry 1, Geometry 2, C P 6, C P 7, C P 8.

Prior to this year, any student who failed the 11th grade Math test could only brush up on his skills by taking a Basic Math mini-course. However, due to popular demand (and widespread junior failure), Basic Math was offered this spring both as a full-semester course and as a mini-course.

Boys' P. E.

Mr. Ed Burns

In order to stimulate greater interest in physical fitness among boys, the Boys' Physical Education Department, headed by Mr. Bill Feiling, made numerous changes in its curriculum by adding several specialized classes. New courses such as combatives, badminton and fencing were offered with tennis, golf, weight training, and swimming. The activities in these classes aren't part of the daily routine in regular PE classes. Instead, the participating students are taught the fundamental skills needed for enjoyment of the specific sport. However, because of the still-limited number of classes upper division boys were given priority over lower division during sign-ups.

The famous track coach, teacher, and counselor, Mr. Barney Wolf, was on sabbatical leave the Spring semester, so Mr. Jack McBride replaced him as coach while Don Richardson took over his PE classes.

English

Meeting with a most favorable reaction by students last spring, the English department's highly innovative elective curriculum swung into its first full year. The fall's most popular literature strand courses included Current Literature, Epic and Myth, and Voices of Minority Writers in America. Satire and Comedy and Science Fiction and Fantasy were among the favorites in the spring. All the composition classes and Cinematography/Non-production ranked high in both the fall and spring.

The department's curriculum revision committee developed four new courses for introduction this spring. Three of these courses emphasized the accent people are now placing on reading. Speed Reading and Reading Improvement, taught by Mrs. Aileen Cofer on a credit/drop-in basis, afforded students the opportunity to increase their speed and improve their skills.

Mrs. Rosemary Dacany's class in Teaching Reading aided those students who tutor in the neighborhood. Mrs. Anne Wallach, Mr. Bert Brauer, Mr. Walter Tresize, and Mrs. Gayle Leyton pooled their resources in teaching Reading Workshop, a class required for some students because of their performances on tests given in the sophomore year. Also offered in the spring, Shakespeare and Shaw supplemented the Junior Honors program.

While placing a new emphasis on expository writing, English 4 also now includes the study of poetry.

Retiring from the English Department and Lowell, Mrs. Mary Frances Cunningham leaves behind a tradition of attention to grammar, self-discipline and respect for the classics. (She is not pictured.)

Foreign Language

The highlight of the Foreign Language Department's year was its December 16 Festival, "Une Kermesse Internationale." Mrs. Valerie Alexander, general chairman of the event, also assumed the role of Mistress of Ceremonies for the afternoon auditorium program of bilingual skits, songs, and dances presented by foreign language classes.

The festivities continued into mid-afternoon in the cafeteria, where students could sample foreign cuisine, take a crack at breaking the Santa Claus pinata, listen to selections sung by members of foreign language classes and clubs, or see a puppet show.

Students were encouraged to wear costumes; those who did competed in a Best Costume contest judged by none other than a panel of foreign language teachers!

The Foreign Language Tutoring Service, a group of advanced French and Spanish students, offered help on a one-to-one basis to first and second year students of these languages.

Mrs. Sara Trelaun sponsored the French tutors and Miss Sandra Mack sponsored the Spanish tutors.

The Language Lab and Resource Center moved from its first floor site to rooms 209-210 this fall. Located there for students' convenience are foreign language magazines, books, tapes, and recorders, and records and phonographs.

Spring 1974

With every succeeding year, Lowell's entering Sophomore class is larger than the class before it; this year's class was no exception, with 1300 students. From the first day here, they were full of spirit. The first order of business was to elect officers. Nick Roxborough was elected president; Doug Ryan, vice-president; Sue Adams, secretary; and Bill Duncan, treasurer.

Spirit Week was the Sophomores' first chance to prove their spirit. The "UndeFEETable" Sophomores wore head and arm bands along with blue jeans, white shirts, and red and white socks on Soph Day. Their original school and class yell was good, and they placed second.

The habitual plague which always seems to form a noose around every class' neck is the exclusive. The Sophomores did not find it so. Held in January, the Soph Exclusive was an undeniable success with the theme of Wine Festival.

Other class activities included a pilgrimage to Legg's Ice Skating Rink, where a skating party was held. Their final class activity for this year was a picnic to Lake Tamascal on May 20.

The Junior class started the year with a car wash in October. The Juniors gave the car wash a spirit of fun, and money was also made from it.

November came and with it, the Spirit Week. The Juniors proved they were truly number one, when they placed first in the Week's competition. On the assigned day, Juniors wore blue jeans, t-shirts, sunglasses, and ballons. The class yell was to the tune of "Armour Hotdogs."

The Junior Exclusive was held around New Year's, with the theme of "Casino Royale." The cafeteria was decorated with cards and spaghetti was served. Approximately 400 attended and the evening was a great success.

An ice-skating party was held at Legg's Ice-Skating Rink in February. It was the annual Junior get-together.

"Let's Stay Together" was the theme of the Junior Prom, held on April 29. The Colonial Room, in the St. Francis Hotel was filled with people.

The last activity for the Junior class was a picnic. It was held on May 27. Needless to say, everyone had an activity-filled Junior year.

1) "In my opinion, . . ."
2) "That's a Spicey Meatball."
3) "Let's Stay Close Together."
4) "Hey! The Juniors are Number One!"
5) The Juniors cleasned it out.

Fall 1972

The Low Senior class had two successful motor vehicle days this year. 1 They also had a sucker sale. The money went for an ice skating party at Legg's. The Class of Fall 1972 also had an exciting ski trip to Squaw Valley, and a picnic to Angel Island.

The Low Senior class merged with the Junior class to produce a triumphant Junior Exclusive, "The Casino Royale." Everyone had a good time gambling, dancing, and eating.

They set up an old-fashioned American hot dog stand for the Cardinal Carnival, May 26.

On June 10, the Low Seniors combined with the High Seniors for the Senior Prom. The "Ethics" played for the happy couples who danced in the California Room of the St. Francis Hotel.

The Class of Fall 1972 has plans for the coming year, including the traditional pre-graduation picnic, dinner, movie, and all.

Oh sea!
In your vast eternity you fail to see
The minute complexities of man.
Take me back to your womb.
I have no need for the ruined soil.
--Joann Uhley

Me,
The epitome of myself,
The one and only,
An individual like no other.
A wisely governed, self-supporting island of one.
Alone in my loneliness,
my stubborness.
Alone in me,
Alone,
as no other human can be.
Hidden deep within me,
are secrets,
prejudices.
Recognized not nearly as much by others,
as by me.
Me,
The individual,
Made of emotions.
Mingled,
with an acute sense,
of Dignity.
--Kathy Marshall

Carry me
atop your shoulders.
And
walk me down to the Golden River.
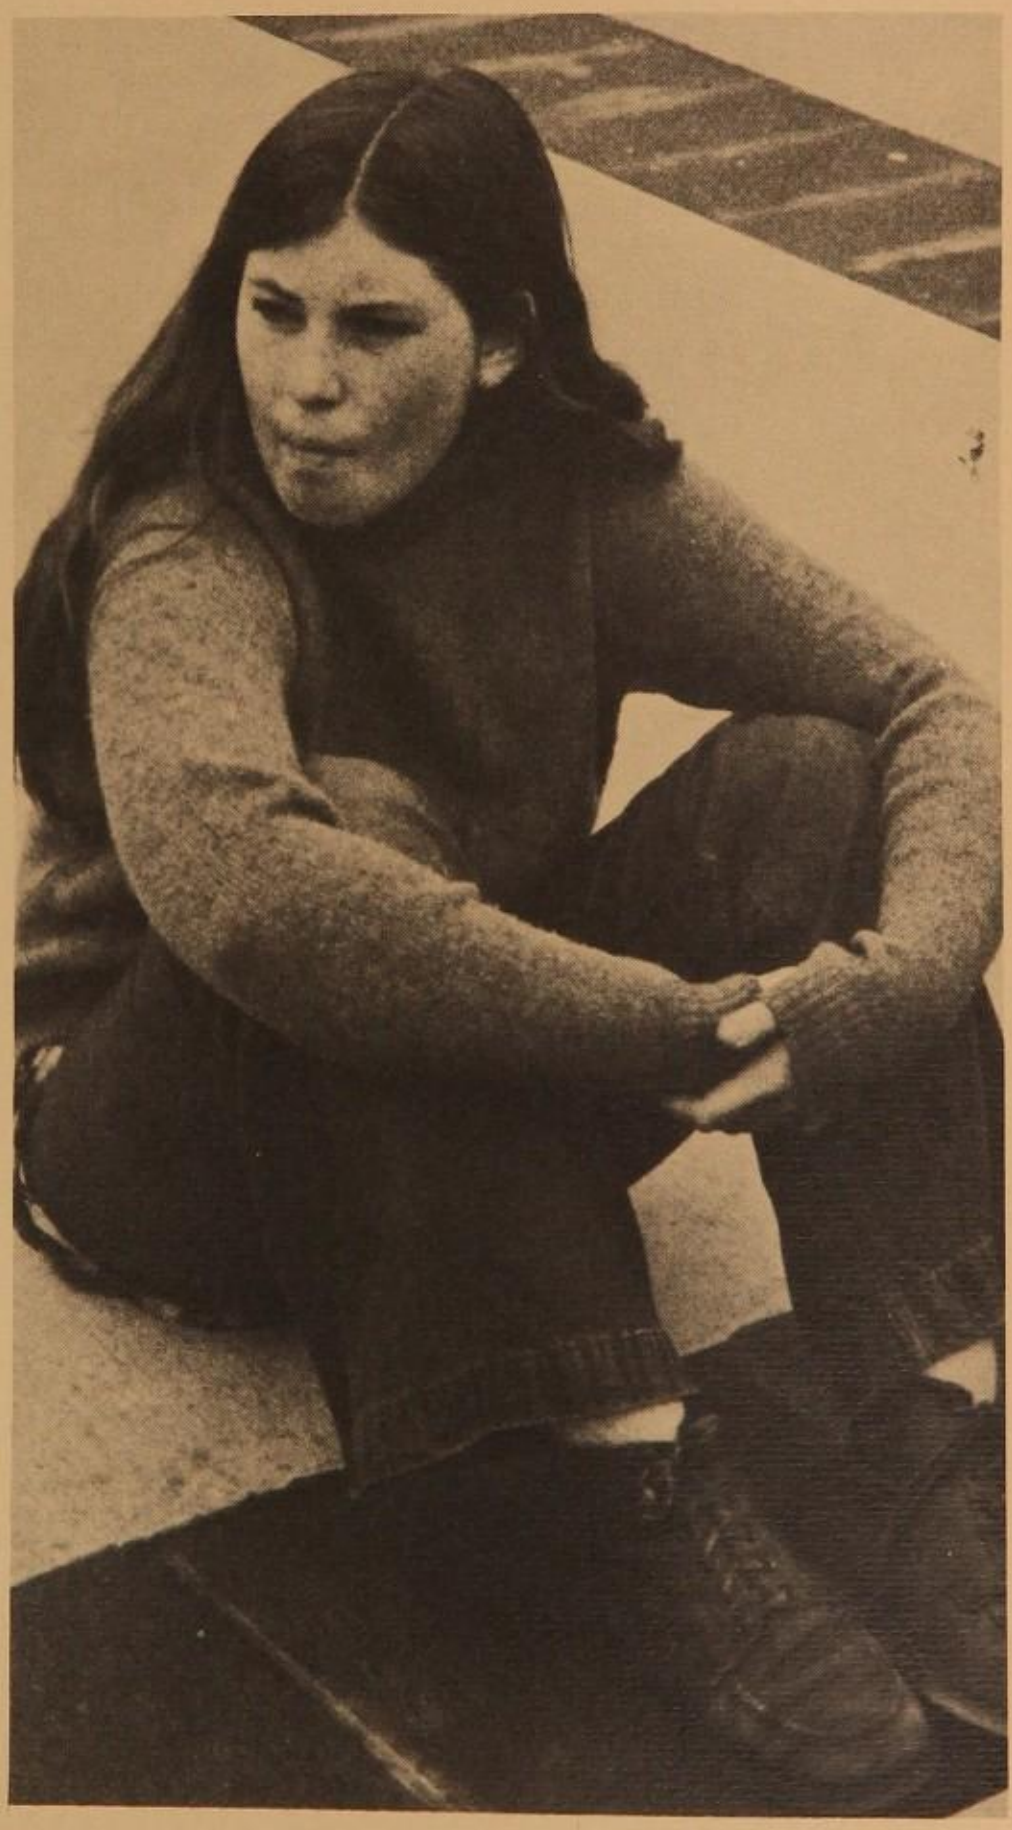
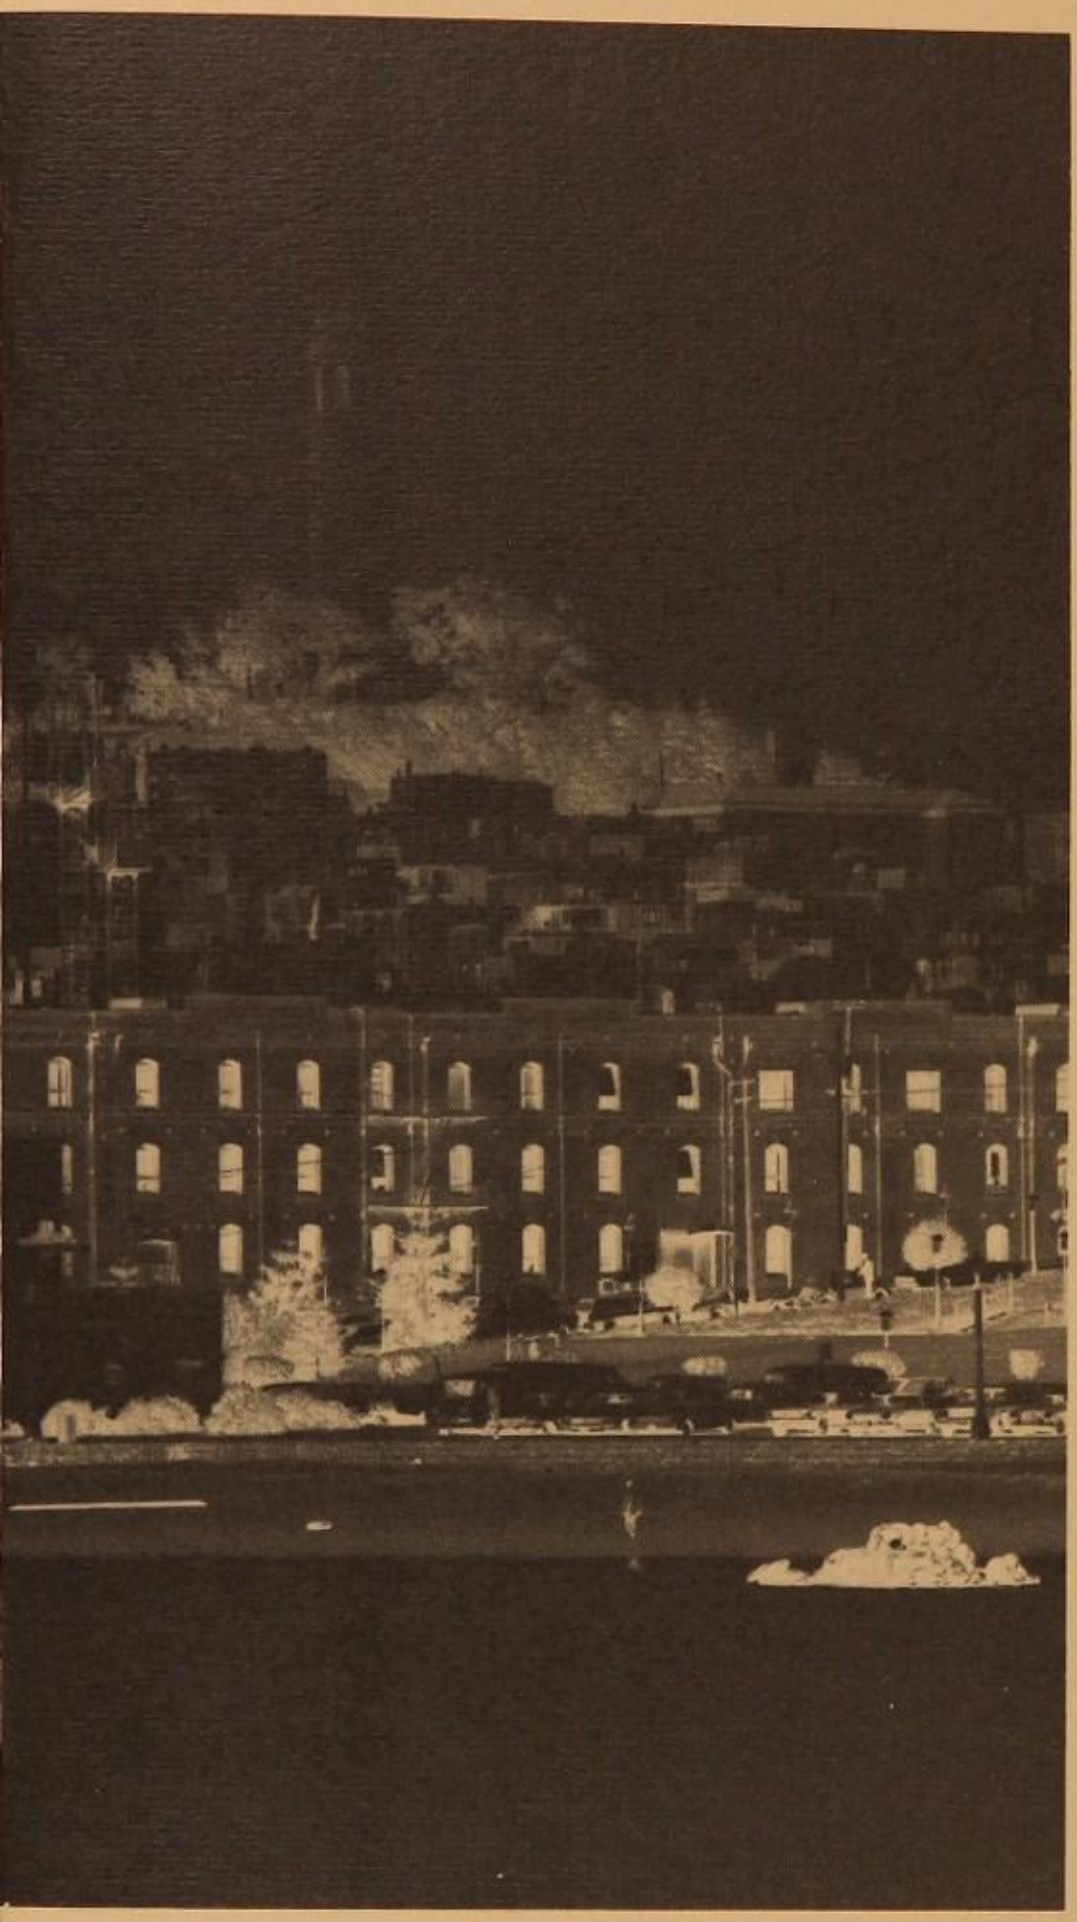
Then bathe me in the soothing waters.
Kiss my lips,
ever so sweetly,
And cradle my body,
in your arms.
Shelter me forever,
from nature's harms.
And when I die,
burn me on an herbal pyre,
And hold my soul forever,
in blissful harmony.
--Kathy Marshall





Confession of a High Senior

Last week I cut a class. I won't say what class; they haven't caught up with me yet. But I openly confess the fact: I cut a class.

I don't know where I went wrong. In sophomore year, I was, according to Mrs. F. Lewis, "a paragon of bunnyhood." To reach this depth of depravity! O whence came my fall?*

And I am not speaking of an isolated incident. The assignments turned in late (or not at all), the faked absences from school (how many times can the nurse turn her head, and pretend that she just doesn't see ...?), the furtive trips to Stonestown during class time, hiding the evidence of my debauchery with all the devious cunning I could muster (do you have any idea of how difficult it is to conceal a melting ice cream cone in the pocket of a trench coat?), the novels smuggled from the resource center for months at a time as my anxiety at being found out mounted daily ("how long, O Lord, how long?"), the...

But enough of that. Certain memories are too painful to discuss right now: The freshly seared impressions are still smoking in my brain. I know from fellows; that certain rules must remain inviolate and sacrosanct to ensure the continuation of human society; nevertheless, I shall confess nothing further. I herewith refuse to cooperate with the forces of goodness, loyal Lowellites, or apple pie-laden mothers.

I realize that in so doing I have put myself outside the pale. But having embarked on this life of crime some six months ago, I can say with certainty that each infraction of the code comes easier and easier, as one's conscience erodes in direct proportion to the number of ommitted transgressions.

It started out innocently enough, I can tell you. A vague malaise, a slight resentment at being kept in school. Still! That was all. But when joined to an initially weak sense of self-discipline and a newly-acquired nonchalance towards grades, it was a potent combination. And there were just enough of my peers who were reacting in the same way to lend an air of acceptability, yea, unto heroism, to the whole mode of existence.

And that is all there is to tell. I can explain no more. Social workers and psychologists may amuse themselves as they will; but that is the way things stand. I know only that if I am judged guilty I do not feel so, and if I am pardoned I shall proceed unrepentant. Is there a student who can truthfully say that he has never once thought of acting as I did; that in not a single remote corner of his soul he has but secretly envied me my position? And if he be among you who is without sin, let him cast the first stone.

The Class of Fall 1971 began one cold, blustery day in January 1969. We were introduced to the disciplinaians who were to keep us in bondage for eleven minutes each day for the next three years. Mr. Carl Koenig, our class sponsor, immediately instilled in our minds that the name of the game was money. We elected for our first term Debbie Garcia, Jane Strauss, Maria Wong, and Jeff Lang. Our immediate fund raisers included the infamous "Bomo" sale which saw Lowell L-10's being sold into human bondage and our ever-popular coat hanger which netted a whopping sum of four dollars.

The following year brought us wads of money and President Abby Jeung, VP Laureen Jang, Secretary Sue Friedlander (Three cheers for Women's Lib), and Treasurer Forrest Gok. Our first assorted fruit sucker sale went quite successfully. We worked closely with the Spring 1971 class to raise money for our jointly held "A Time for Us" at the St. Francis Colonial Room. Among our joint cash collecting tasks were the old 261-a newspaper fold-in drive and the football game concessions.

Our H-ll term brought our class closer to the activities scene. Our treasury was depleted by the expense of the Prom, and it was the job of the new officers--Bill Lahl, Forrest Gok, Clare Jang, and Sarah Wong--to gather greenbacks. We staged an interesting Halloween Picnic on Angel Island where we, along with the L-ll's, played the "mummy game," barbecued chicken, sampled A. J. Pinfold's Spam Surprise, and hiked for miles. This term also brought to life our Senior Spirit Newspaper, the longest-running class newspaper in Modern Lowell history, (10 issues) under Editor Helen Yee. What was to be our final exclusive, the biggy--"They Shoot Lasagna, Don't They??"--was held on January 8, 1971, with a Roaring 20's theme. Preceding "Lasagna" was, of course, "Ecliptic" and "Spring Fling."

Valiant tries to have a new variety of fund raisers only floundered, and we again had a couple of candy sales and a variation on the renowned "Bomo" sale, the ten dollar Brown Bag Bomo Sale, which brought to life Naomi's shortcake and sue's "Lox on a Bagel."

Our latest project became the Bestline products sale. This sale, also known as the Suds Sacrifice, was well-received by our generous parents or rather kids who talked their parents into buying the stuff. We as H-12's elected Forrest Gok as President, Ron Kremling as VP, and two holdovers, Secretary Clare Jang and Treasurer Sarah Wong.

Our last term was highlighted with the advent of cheerful supporters: Debbie Yuen, the Prom Chairman, Elaine Lee, Leslie Brooks, Dede Steinfeld, Sue and Glenn Shelly, Robert Lee, Katrina Loskutoff, Helen, Maria, Tina, and lots of other assorted characters.

Our Senior Picnic was held at Turtle Rock Ranch, at the cost of only a dollar. Mr. Koenig's burgers were the main attraction along with the dreary weather, Carrie's dancing, and Wayne, Bob, Steve, and Brad's indiscriminate shoving of every human into the pool including some non-floaters like... well, never mind. Our money came from our suckers, the 261-a vending machine, and the Walnetto distributor in 261-a.

Senior Buttons were sold by Ron, and many people were after the designer's head when the unique design became known. Our Senior Dinner at Joe Jung's provided us with the Pop Poll announcements and Eric Bickel's folly, the Senior Movie, which showed us at our hammiest best. "Sparkling in the Sand," the January 22 Senior Prom, was heavily attended.

We closed out our Lowell days at the auditorium, where it all began, amidst tears and sobs and speeches by Bill Lahl, Maria Wong, Sally Susnowitz, and Forrest Gok. Our high school education was finished as we, complete with cap and gown, raced out of the auditorium to the sounds of "With heads bared, we stand..." The Class of Fall 1971 was no more.

Class of Spring '72

Think back, way back into time. Back to September 1969. The place was 1101 Eucalyptus Drive. Lowell High School. We stood in the fog in the courtyard, clumped into our old junior high groups for security as much as for friendship. We didn't know each other, but was all had a common bond and goal. That bond was a "good grade point average," and that goal was to somehow survive three years at Lowell.

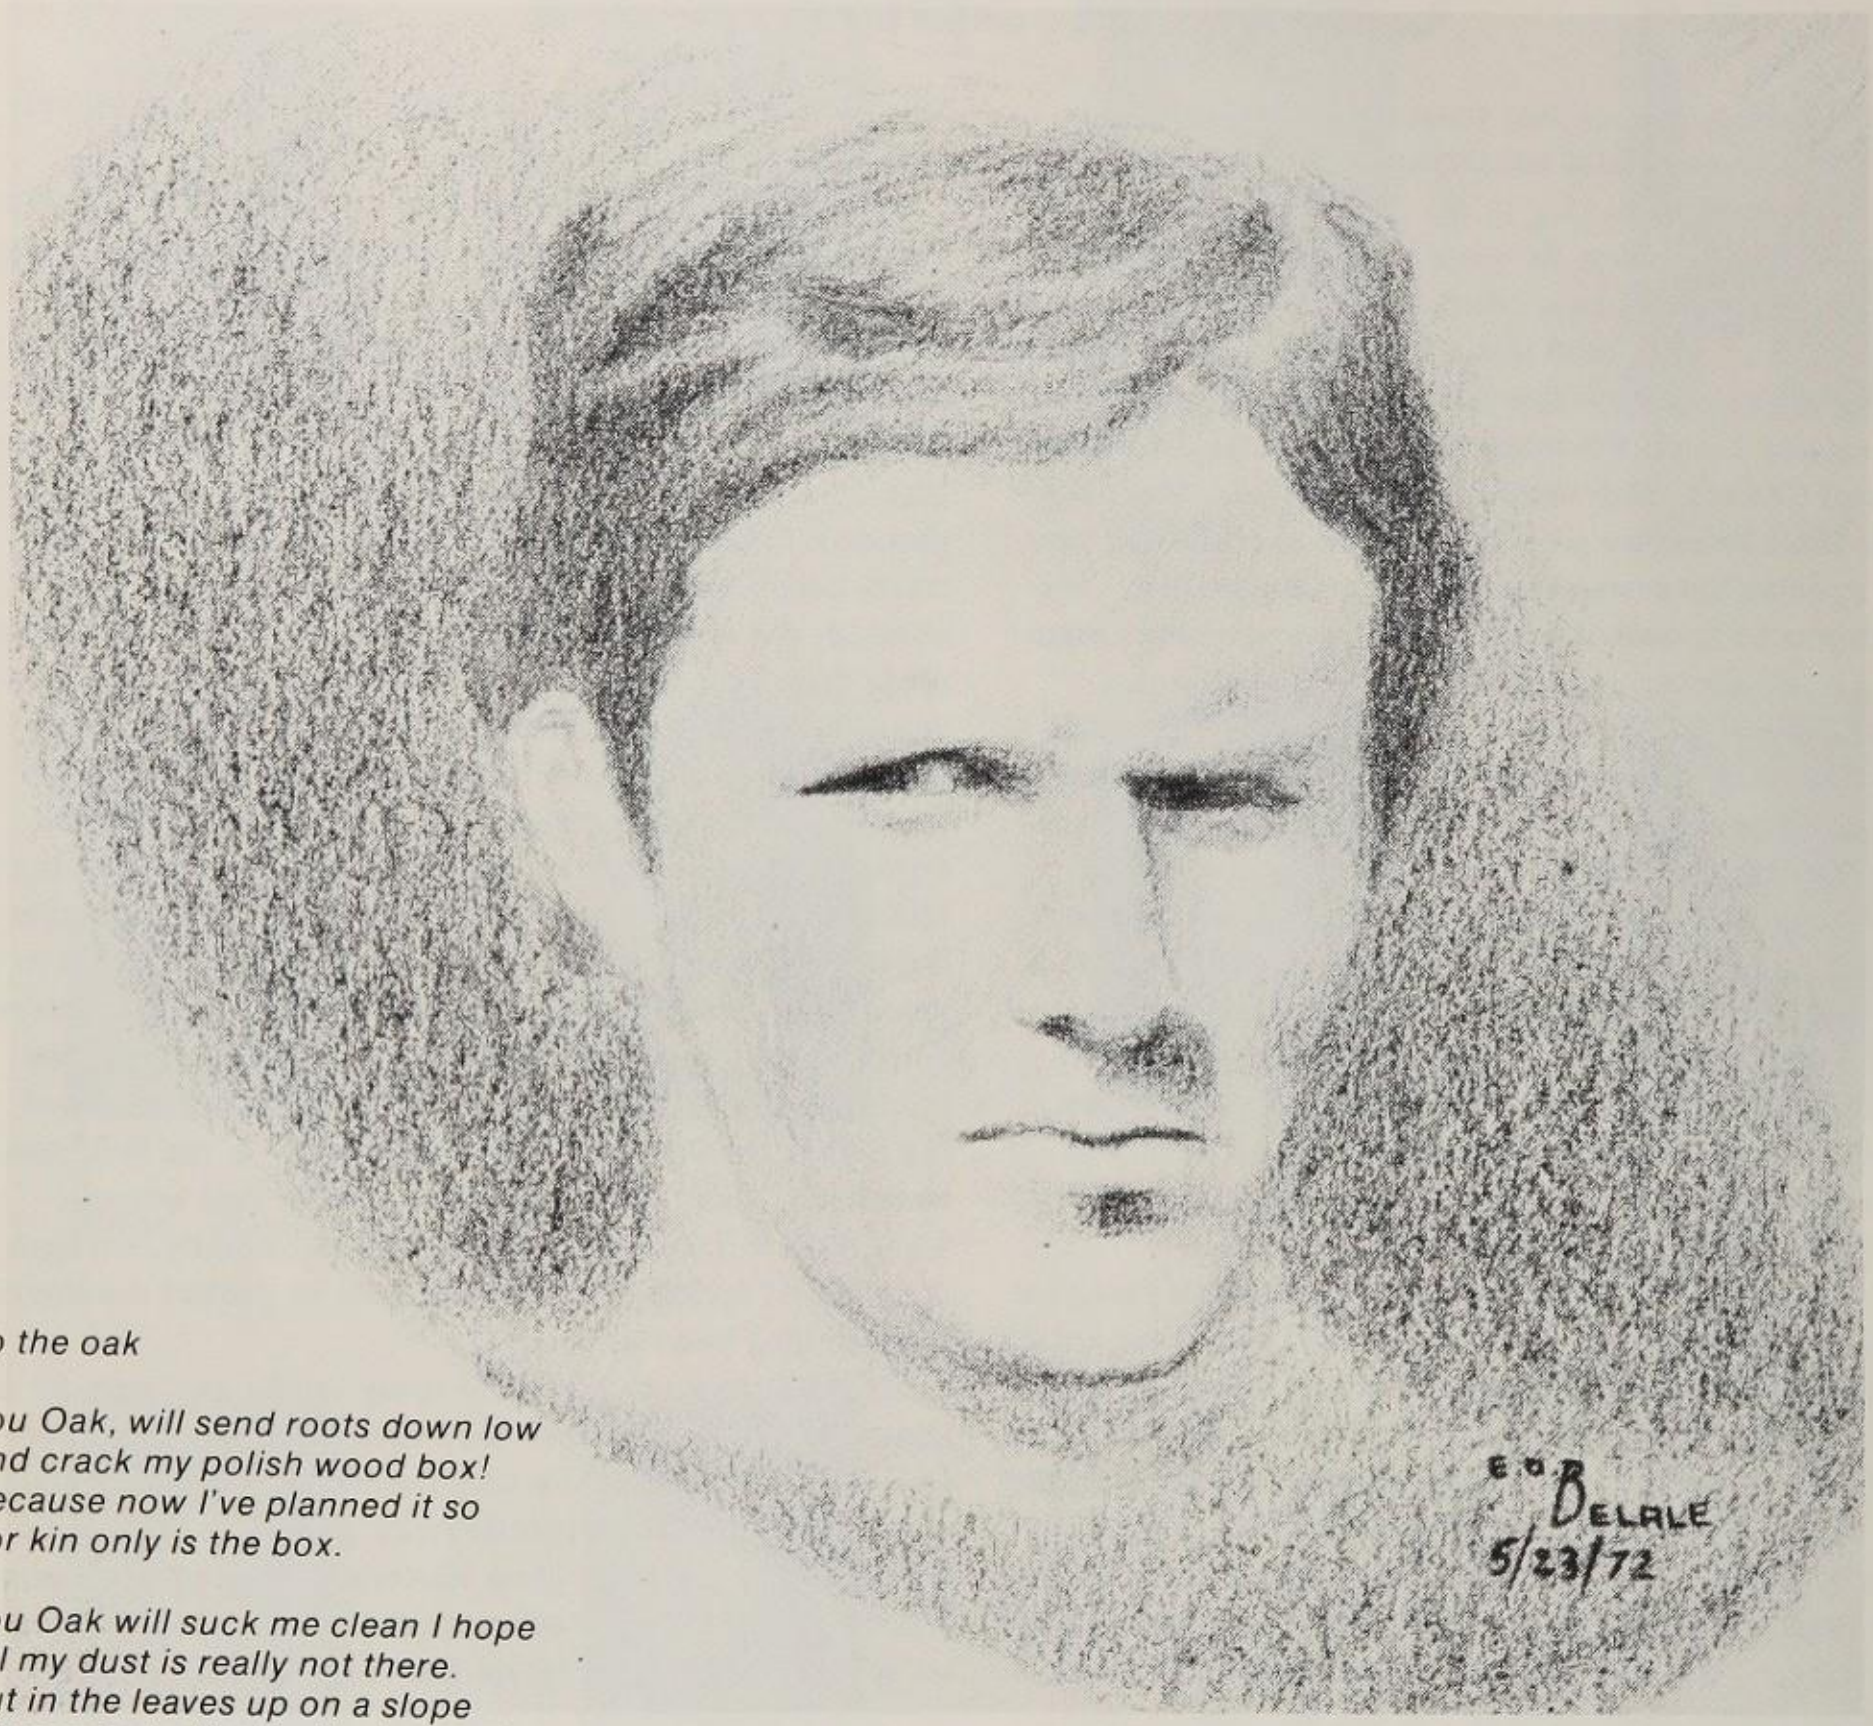
We entered Lowell the same time as Modular Scheduling, the Lowell Charter, and unscheduled time did. Mods boggled our little minds for a month. We were scheduled into classes by some unknown sadist with a yellow marker. We were introduced to such strange events as Sophomore Orientation, Lowell dances, and rallies, as well as Vietnam Moratoriums and Ecology Day. David Sandlin and Brenda Booker were class presidents for our Soph year, with Vicepresident Brad Arrick, Treasurer Lori Silver, and Secretary Barbara Rudee. Our first year went badly, with the final blow coming when our Soph Exclusive was cancelled due to low ticket sales. Our picnic, held on the soccer field on a foggy, cold self-scheduling day, featured music by the Hart Beet (?), frisbee tossing, football, and a great many Sophs with bad cases of frostbite. To add insult to injury, our perfect-record varsity football team lost to Balboa in the playoff for Turkey Day, and the Soph team managed to win only one game.

Our Junior year started out as badly as our Soph year, but when things looked worst, we began to pull out of our apathy. The class, slowed due to late elections and a lack of funds, nevertheless managed to hold their Exclusive, at which hundreds of Juniors danced, shot Lasagna, and did whatever else people do at Exclusives. To make some $, concessions, manned by Juniors, popped up at some major Lowell events. Our big class project was the sale of the bumper strip, "Life is for Loving," and with the money we had finally made, we held our Junior Prom on May 1 at the St. Francis Hotel. A good year this time for Lowell football fans, as the Varsity beat Balboa at Turkey Day by a score of 26-12. Our JV's, a throwback to the 1969 Soph team, again took only one game--this one by forfeit.

And that brought us to our Senior year. As usual things started slowly. Money, again, was the big problem, along with the ever-present apathy. A poorly attended Senior Exclusive, a few get-togethers, and an unprecedented last-place finish in the Class Spirit Week competition characterized the Low Senior term. In the Spring things finally began moving as our class, headed by President Otis Watson, Vicpresident Ellen Zappatini, Treasurer John Knox, and Secretary Lena Chang, held its first class meeting of the year at which the chairmen of the various Senior committees spoke about their upcoming events. Car washes, B. Dalton sales, Bestline, and revenue from the Senior Show gave the class enough money to reduce the price on all activities. The Senior Picnic, held on May 31, saw nearly 500 of us eat, drink, play games, swim, and sleep under the warm sun of Little Hills Ranch in San Ramon. The Senior Sneak, held the next day (so that we could recover from our hangovers), successfully ended a long, lazy five-day week-end. More activities followed: the Senior Prom, held June 10 at the St. Francis, well-attended, reverberated to the sounds of the Ethics; the Senior Dinner, held mostly at the Four Seas restaurant, featured the traditional Senior Poll winners, along with Bill Zachary's Senior Movie. Finally, on June 15 the Class of Spring 1972 accomplished its goal of the survival of three long years at Lowell.

These three years here held many laughs and tears for us, though some '72 grads can look back on those years at Lowell and see only troubles with teachers and grades. Many of us had a great time meeting new people, going places, and generally getting a good education outside the classroom. We're sure not to forget our time at Lowell, no matter how we spent it. We're going out into a big confusing world. If we're lucky, maybe we'll make it. May the Class of Spring 1972 be blessed with peace and happiness!

--Wayne Lukaris



To the oak

You Oak, will send roots down low
And crack my polish wood box!
Because now I've planned it so
For kin only is the box.

You Oak will suck me clean I hope
Till my dust is really not there.
But in the leaves up on a slope
Of your limbs that bathe in the air.

You Oak must grow your green eyes
For to study the world's way.
Grow and reach and touch sea skies
And rain beauty on the day.

Get my seed out on your limbs
And show that life cannot die.
Fetch the wind to sing its hymns
Of regions far vast and high.

Tell the angels who fly around
You're really far greater than they
Even though you're stuck to the ground,
Well, so were they on it one day.

Now Oak, I know it's hard on you
To live and grow, yet live on dust
But please find me and grow anew.
Can you do it? Well, yes, you must.
--Bob Spear September 1970

BOB SPEAR

A strong young man, friend to many, enemy to none, he throroughly enjoyed life. His main goal was to be happy. "Enjoy life today; don't worry about tomorrow" was truly the philosophy he lived by.

Don't spend time mourning Bob Spear. He would want everyone to enjoy life as best he can, for he knew it's the biggest treasure a person has. But every once in a while, when you see a beautiful sunset or smell the fresh air of a mountain forest, or feel the refreshing spray of a powerful wave, stop for a second and think about and appreciate how beautiful life really is. Bob would dig that. He was like that.

The theme "Never Can Say Goodbye" set the mood for the 1972 Senior Prom. The California Room in the St. Francis Hotel was the gathering place for approximately 150 couples on June 10. They danced to the music of the Ethics.

The two chairmen for the Prom Committee were Dana McCready and Patrice Power.

Spring 1972 Graduation

To underclassmen and Seniors alike, graduation is merely a ceremnoy in which the Seniors wait long hours for their diplomas. For the most part this may be true, but graduation from high school must be more than filing through lines to get a blank diploma. And it is.

The Commencement ceremony began at 2 pm June 15 at the Masonic Auditorium, The Seniors gracefully walked in to the chords of "Pomp and Circumstance" played by the Lowell orchestra. The two speakers this year were Brenda Booker and Paula Youngman. The choir sang two pieces and the orchestra "gave" a musical gift to the class. The Seniors then received their blank diplomas. The Lowell Hym was sang by the class for the last time and the Seniors retreated to the Recession March.

Lowell Staff

Editor Virginia Aiken (Fall 1971) steered THE LOWELL back to classic newspaper form after several experimental years and Steve Campagna-Pinto (editor Spring 1972) took the paper on to in-depth coverage, expose, and samples of "new journalism" or personal reporting. Rosie Hart wrote outstanding coverage of the Lowell Suit.

Due to the new typewriter and sufficient ads (Sue Friedlander and Glenn Dizon plus efforts of Robert Reid, Debbie Nager, and Carol Klemmer) the paper survived the budget cut and produced 12 regular issues (some 12 and 16 pages) and two specials, ending in the black!

Girl sports writers Karen Gee and Betty Ann Schwartz and food specialists Beth Ruby and Mariette Fillman plus columnists Leslie Dixon, Bob Blumenkrantz, Greg Turrell, Ted Gross, and Craig Choy livened up the feature side of the news.

Excellent sports coverage by the staff, led by Steve and then Alan Gutterman was made possible by the fine photography of non-staffer Soph Matt Wilson.

Always at the copy desk when needed were Errol Gearlds, Gary English, Craig Collins, Bob Westermark and Mark Ungar with his pen to fill in the spaces with fine line drawings.

Most outstanding was the cooperative spirit between the news staff and the yearbook staff--photographers, layout and design people, writers all worked on both publications as needed and put extra effort into whichever deadline was being met.

No deadlines would have been met without the typing of Helena Intertas, Karen Gee, Maria Stephenson, Jeanette Huie, Kathy Thompson, and Irene Asturias.

Red and White

The 1972 Red and White is the result of mixing tradition with the idea that the day-to-day events of school are not the only things of importance in a Lowell student's life, that the "outside world" had a tremendous effect upon how each of us feels and acts. So, we on the staff have organized the yearbook around this basic theme.

Like all yearbook editors, we faced an interminable parade of completion deadlines for various parts of the book (most of which went flying by generally unnoticed) as well as the eternal problems of misspelled names, missing photographs, and overlooked events. To all of you that we have inadvertently slighted in one way or another, we on the Red and White are truly sorry, and hope you will bear with our shortcomings. Nevertheless we think we've successfully reflected the year in these pages, though you, the readers, are the final judges.

Despite the many panics and problems, of the last year, it has been a trip working with the people that comprised the staff of the 1972 book. Special thanks go to Emily Llorente, who is responsible for the new ideas in the book's design, Liz Lewis, who did a tremendous amount of work and worry, and to the menials, who not only did invaluable work but added a note of craziness to Room 251 throughout the year. A final, inadequate thanks goes to Mrs. Elizabeth Shafer, who sacrificed more time and effort than anyone had a right to expect.

As yearbook editors we had an overwhelming compulsion to say something about the 1971-72 year. This is how we saw it:

In keeping with the "Lowell tradition," Lowell maintained its high academic standing, as many awards, honors, and scholarships of all descriptions were awarded to Fall '71 and Spring '72 graduates. The trend toward a more varied curriculum continued, although more students failed to get the desired classes on the now-famous Self-scheduling Day, more accurately labeled "Scramble Day." Greater restrictions and increased faculty supervision was a result of growing "green cheating" by students hoping to avoid unpopular teachers, times, and courses.

The controversial Lowell Suit, apparently settled this summer, represented another in the series of unsuccessful attempts to eliminate The City's academic high school.

Poor validation sales, controversial BCO fund-raising, and cliquishness in the upper echelons of student organizations contributed to the predictable continuing decline in participation in traditional school activities. Although it is difficult to point out what is filling in this gap in each student's life, extra-curricular pursuits ranged from photography to backpacking to witchcraft.

However, certain occurrences gave the '71-72 year a unique character. Despite initial opposition of members of the community and administration, Lowell's first full year of open campus passed quietly and successfully. Spring 1972 graduates were the first to spend their entire three years under the modular-flexible scheduling system, judged by alumni as simplifying the great transition between high school and college life. The Lowell Varsity football team, considered nearly invincible in past seasons, failed to go as far as the playoffs.

The mass social activism of the past, as evidenced by Vietnam moratoriums, Environment Day, and the Walk for Mankind, was just that--of the past, despite the fact that 1972 was a presidential election year. The much-publicized "return to studies" that took place on college campuses did not occur at Lowell, and the lack of activism in Lowell students had little visible replacement. Instead, attention was drawn closer to "home," such as the Lowell Suit and the highly controversial question of the Lowell Indian. The fact that these two issues received such widespread student attention was indicative of the redirection of interest from issues of more widespread importance to questions over which the individual Lowell student had more power and knowledge.

After the turbulence of change in the past years, the '71-72 term could be best described as a year of valuable, much needed rest from the recent turmoil of transition. The future will show whether this year was indeed a time of calm or actually the beginning of stagnation in all levels of the Lowell Community.
